

your contributions: news

Spacious European-style boarding stalls are part of the climate-controlled barn, which also features automatic waterers and rubber mat flooring.

PHOTO COURTESY
ERIC PURKALITIS

New equestrian facility caters to horse, rider

Submitted by Bridget Richards

YourHub.com user

The Indian Hills Equestrian Center is pleased to announce its opening.

Bridget Richards posted this story on YourHub.com for owner Andra Ozols.

The full-service indoor and outdoor hunter/jumper facility is located off of Parmalee Gulch in Indian Hills.

Construction of the Indian Hills Equestrian Center was completed in late 2008.

The new 42,000-square-foot facility provides a boarding, riding and jumping environment with 37 spacious European-style stalls, a large (110 by 200-foot) heated indoor riding and jumping arena with custom footing and an adjacent (120 by 250-foot) outdoor training arena.

An indoor arena viewing area and recreational lounge are planned for late 2009.

For horse owners in the Front Range area, the Indian Hills facility offers unsurpassed amenities.

The facility includes an experienced full-time barn manager, generous tack rooms, wash racks, changing rooms with showers, laundry facilities, electronic security and fire protection, customized feed programs, trailer parking and 25 grazing acres.

"Our goal is to serve the Colorado horse community by developing one of the finest commercial hunter/jumper facilities in Colorado," said owner Andra Ozols.

"At Indian Hills Equestrian Center, we provide an unmatched boarding experience for our clients and a top-rated training environment catering to serious hunter/jumper competitors," Ozols said.

For information about the new Indian Hills Equestrian Center, call 303-704-3655 or visit www.indianhillsec.com.

hit it

Short stories often are filled with just as much information as longer ones. Register online at YourHub.com now to inform your neighbors about something you think they should know about.